Osaka Gas Marketing has launched this service as a new business with the aim of offering comprehensive support for customers' lives with “moving” as a starting point.

1. Background

With approximately five million moves every year in Japan, the complexity of completing moving procedures and comparing moving companies has become a challenge. Moving serves as an important “starting point in life” for considering making contracts for various infrastructure services, such as electricity, gas, and communications, due to significant changes in living circumstances. With a focus on the opportunity of “moving,” which is well-suited to products and services provided by Osaka Gas, we have launched this service.

2. Service overview

Users can easily compare prices, services, and reviews of moving companies in Japan carefully selected by Osaka Gas Marketing on the website and request quotes from multiple moving companies all at once by simply entering information such as where you are moving to and when. After requesting a quote, users can also apply for various infrastructure services provided by Osaka Gas, such as electricity, gas, and communications*². The moving company selection and the procedure for various infrastructure services can be completed on one website, reducing the complexity of moving.
